

Writing Prompts

Write the last line of your novel. Now go start writing the novel itself.

Look outside and write about the oddest thing you see.

Write a series of 6-word memoirs.

If you went to the park and found a red vase in the field, what do you think the story behind it is?

What stupid thing happened on your last vacation?

If you had to write three sentences to sum up the month of February, how would you do it?

“When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to...” Finish this.

What did your first grade teacher look like?

What if dogs didn't have whiskers?

Review the last book you read.

What invention would you like to create and market?

How do you think people see you?